

Master of Science in PROTECTION MANAGEMENT

STUDY IN NEW YORK CITY

JOHN
JAY COLLEGE
OF
CRIMINAL JUSTICE

Restoring calm in the face of terror, imposing order on chaos— there are few things more critical, immediate, or deeply gratifying.

John Jay College's Master of Science program in Protection Management prepares graduates to do exactly this—on a large-scale basis. By providing our students with a combined mastery of Fire Protection Services, Security Management, and Emergency Management—the disciplines that are the foundation of our one-of-a-kind Protection Management MS program—we equip them with the skills to contribute to society in the most basic of ways: protecting the lives and property of its citizens.

John Jay College of Criminal Justice is committed to producing highly competent, ethical, and self-sufficient professionals within the three branches of Protection Management and to making a strong contribution to the world's ability to satisfy its essential safety and security needs.

A program unlike any other

John Jay College's Master of Science program in Protection Management stands alone. Within a single degree program, students have the unusual opportunity to study all three of the disciplines charged with protecting the lives and property of organizations—Fire Protection Services, Security Management, and Emergency Management. Students specialize in one of the three areas, while still completing coursework in the other two. The result is a highly desirable graduate with an exceedingly well rounded understanding of this unique field of study.

Our Protection Management MS program has an urban focus that enables students to take full advantage of John Jay's location in New York City—long regarded as the epicenter of cutting-edge fire protection, security management, and emergency management techniques and technologies, particularly in the wake of 9/11. As an example of the curricular sophistication and the depth of the College's facilities, not only do students study emergency management practices of high-rise buildings, they receive exceptional hands-on training through the College's state-of-the-art Emergency Management and High Rise Simulator.

John Jay College offers its Protection Management graduate students unparalleled resources. The College is home to the Fire Science Institute, which helps professionals in the firefighting/security fields meet new daily challenges while continuing preparations to prevent the next potential disaster; the Center for Private Security and Safety, which provides education and training across all strata of the industry and where students have the opportunity to engage with senior leaders in the field such as chief security officers; the Christian Regenhard Center for Emergency Response Studies, a research center dedicated to the effectiveness of America's first responders; and the Academy for Critical Incident Analysis, which was established to promote and disseminate scholarly research relating to the emergence, management, and consequences of critical incidents.

An extraordinary opportunity to learn from foremost authorities in the field

John Jay College's tradition of academic excellence affords students the chance to learn from renowned scholars and highly lauded practitioners in the field of Protection Management who know the importance and value of teaching future leaders.

An MS in Protection Management from John Jay College opens doors.

Our program graduates enter public service, where they work for elite federal agencies such as the FBI, the U.S. Department of Health and Health Services, and the U.S. Secret Service. They are also employed within all of the major public protection management agencies at the state and local levels.

In addition, many of our graduates are recruited by prestigious private-sector firms, where they command top positions in fire safety and administration, corporate security, private security, disaster planning and response, emergency management, risk management and mitigation, and business continuity, among others.

Program graduates also use their degree as a springboard to gain entry into top universities, where they enroll in doctoral programs or teach. The possibilities are endless.

In addition to award-winning academic scholars who have authored ground-breaking studies and published in leading professional journals, the faculty counts among its members industry professionals who have held, or who currently hold, high-level positions within the disciplines of Fire Protection Services, Security Management, and Emergency Management. Students enrolled in our Protection Management MS program have the remarkable opportunity to learn from the best of the best. These professionals bring their cutting-edge expertise into the classroom, providing students with the latest information within a rapidly evolving field.

A highly original and compelling curriculum

Our Master of Science program in Protection Management provides students with an advanced professional education in theory, design, management, and operation of fire protection services, security management, and emergency management. Programs and procedures, and their practical application, are explored in a variety of public, commercial, and residential settings.

Core classes include “Introduction to Protection Management Systems,” “Introduction to Emergency Management,” “Theory and Design of Fire Protection Systems,” “Safety and Security in the Built Environment,” “Risk Analysis and Loss Prevention,” “Human Resources Management,” “Organization Theory and Management,” “Research Methods in Public Administration,” “Analytical Methods in Protection Management,” and “Capital and Operational Budgeting.”

Among the many stand-out electives offered within the program are courses such as “Public Administration Investigative Techniques,” “Contemporary Issues in Security Management,” “Advanced Fire Protection Systems,” “Emergency Management Preparedness and Response,” and “Terrorism and Apocalyptic Violence.” We invite you to apply to this remarkable program!

An exciting new option for online study in Security Management

John Jay College of Criminal Justice is proud to offer an outstanding new online option for students seeking an MS in Security Management.

This fully flexible program boasts small classes (typically no more than 20 students per class), an accelerated format in which students can earn up to six credits every eight weeks, a preeminent faculty of global experts in security management, an online program that is one of the most affordable security management programs in the United States, and last but not least, a highly prestigious degree from a world leader in justice education. Visit www.johnjayonline.com/security to learn more.

Contact Us

No program of this scope can be captured in one brochure. Visit www.jjay.cuny.edu/academics/696.php to learn about the program, its courses, requirements and more.

To schedule a meeting and visit our campus, please contact:

Office of Admissions at 212.237.8863 or Dr. Charles Nemeth, Graduate Program Director, at 212.237.8756.

With John Jay's MS program in Protection Management, you will make a world of difference.
Come explore the possibilities.

JOHN
JAY COLLEGE
OF CRIMINAL JUSTICE

