In a ranking by USA Today and Schools.com, Aberdeen was listed as the second-best small college town in the country. Northern State University offers an affordable, quality education in a safe, Midwestern town with generous hospitality. NSU's small class sizes, exceptional professors, and various co-curricular programs provide a public-school education with a private college feel.

All international students get some type of financial assistance, ranging from $1500 to $16,000, to cover their degree program expenses.

With annual tuition around $10,000 for international students, Northern State University is an affordable choice for your education.

Northern State University was the recipient of more than $100 million in privately funded building projects and scholarships. NSU President Dr. Timothy Downs said the projects add more positive momentum at NSU, including the recently renovated Johnson Fine Arts Center, the new Wolves Memorial Suites residence, two new residence halls to open in August 2018 and the Regional Science Education Center which broke ground in March 2018.

“All of our projects - whether it’s the expansion of our fine arts facility, the addition of suite-style housing, or a brand new academic building - are aimed at enhancing the student experience,” said Downs. “We want to continue to make Northern an excellent campus for students to live and learn for decades to come.”
