Marlboro College

in Marlboro, VT

Marlboro College is an independent, liberal arts college dedicated to interdisciplinary and student-designed learning within an inclusive, close-knit community. Located in the foothills of the Green Mountains in southern Vermont, Marlboro's beautiful campus provides a backdrop for a unique learning environment that honors individual expression, intellectual candor and diverse perspectives.

With a student-to-faculty ratio of 5:1, Marlboro offers undergraduates the opportunity to collaborate closely with faculty as they develop and pursue their individual academic and personal goals.

As juniors and seniors, students develop and complete a self-designed Plan of Concentration, an independent examination of the academic subject they are most passionate about. Browsing previous students' Plans showcases the wide-ranging interests of Marlboro students and the extraordinary intellectual quality of their work.

Outside of the classroom, Marlboro students build a vibrant campus community by organizing clubs and activities that reflect their passions. Many take advantage of Marlboro's Outdoor Program to stay active and explore the surrounding mountain trails, lakes, and rivers, and activities like broomball and cross-country skiing are longstanding winter traditions.

Marlboro is a self-governing community, meaning that students, administration and faculty regularly gather at a New England-style Town Meeting to vote on college-wide issues, and many students participate in focused communities.

Life at Marlboro is deeply connected to the history and culture of the surrounding rural community: students operate an organic farm on campus, produce maple syrup from sap harvested in Marlboro's forest reserve, and volunteer in local organizations.

At the same time, students are encouraged to think globally by engaging with the college's international community on campus or participating in a study away or international exchange program.

Marlboro's graduate-level programs in management and education encourage the development of visionary leaders who incorporate empathy and principles of social justice into their professional practice and pedagogy. The programs consist of short residencies and weekend classes, which allow graduate students to balance their academics with work, family and other commitments.
